

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

ATLANTIC CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

By PRESIDENT H. S. HILLEY

Wilson, N. C.

ATLANTIC Christian College is a coeducational institution located at Wilson, the strategic center of the eastern Carolina section, which it has largely served. In its twenty years of history it has continually tried to turn into the life of the state thoroughly trained and equipped men and women.

It was the belief of its founders that to accomplish its work there was no need of large numbers of students nor an indefinite multiplication of courses of instruction. The instruction offered is confined to that leading to the bachelor's degree, and is based on graduation from a four-year high school course. The college has never graduated large numbers, but those who have finished its course have done well in their chosen work or in further training in higher educational institutions.

The equipment of the college for the courses offered has been adequate. Efforts are now being made to improve materially the laboratory and library equipment. In addition to the regular courses leading to the degree of A.B. students may elect courses in piano, voice or expression for which credit will be given.

A matter of pride to the college has been its faculty. Dr. H. O. Pritchard, president of the American Council of Church Board of Education, said after a recent visit to the college, "It has a strong faculty, an exceptional faculty for a school of its size." We believe this to be true and in point of training and experience the faculty will compare favorably with schools of our class.

One of the college's greatest assets we number as the personal contacts which the members of the faculty are able to maintain with the students. Such personal contacts with their bearing on personal lives and problems and on the cultural aspects of college life are able to be kept up only because of the fact that Atlantic Christian College is a small college. The activities which students usually maintain, athletics, social groups, literary societies, publications, etc., are found here with the further advantage that every student has greater opportunity to play some important part and to develop his sense of leadership. Many of the students take advantage of the opportunities each year, both in the college and in the town, to earn a part or all of their way through college.

GIRLS' DORMITORY—ATLANTIC CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

Advantages of the kind we have been naming appeal greatly, as is shown by the fact that our college enrollment has almost doubled in the last two years. It is the constant endeavor of the faculty that even in such increase of numbers we should not lose sight of what is after all the highest task of the college.

For while it is our desire to offer the best possible training mentally and socially we are especially eager to strengthen character. The college was founded and controlled by the Disciples of Christ in the Carolinas. It is not their purpose that the college should be sectarian, but they do earnestly wish that it be Christian in its atmosphere and in its influence on its students.

In short, our aim is a small college, thoroughly equipped and manned by a well trained corps of teachers which shall give to all thorough training, not in subject matter alone, but in those finer values of culture and life which we call Christian. To students who seek such training, the doors of Atlantic Christian College are open.

CONCORDIA COLLEGE

By PRESIDENT O. W. KREINHEDER
Conover, N. C.

CONCORDIA College, Conover, N. C., is one of fifteen educational institutions owned and conducted by the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio, and other states in various parts of the United States, in Canada, and in South America. The location of the institution at an elevation of about 1,200 feet in the foothills of the beautiful and bracing ous physical, mental, and moral development of the student.

The main college building occupies an elevated site within the town limits. It is a two-story frame building containing the auditorium, the library, and the chemical and physical laboratory, on the ground floor, and lecture-rooms, on the second floor. To the mountains of Western North Carolina is a very healthful one, and its accessibility from every direction by means of the Asheville division of the Southern Railroad is most satisfactory. The proximity of a number of thriving towns and cities, such as Newton and Hickory, furnishes sufficient opportunities and diversions without unnecessarily taxing the healthy and harmoniright of the college building stands the dormitory for boys, a brick structure containing sixteen rooms. To the left stands the new building, which, besides providing bedrooms, study-rooms, and a music-room for girls, contains a large dining-hall for all boarding students. The class-rooms, the library, and the laboratories are well equipped, and annual appropriations

DORMITORY AND RECITATION HALL—CONCORDIA COLLEGE